Riad says:

No Cairo League meetings until Egypt returns to fold

CAIRO, Nov. 6 (Agencies)—The Arab League will hold no further meetings in Cairo "until Egypt returns to the Arab Camp," the secretary general of the 22-member organization said Monday.

Mahmoud Riad, who was speaking to reporters on his return here from the Arab summit in Baghdad, said future meetings of the Arab League, which has its headquarters in Cairo, would be held in other Arab capitals.

Riad said Arab foreign ministers would meet in Baghdad once Egypt and Israel had signed a peace treaty to discuss the removal of the League headquarters from Cairo.

He said it had been decided at the Baghdad summit to hold all League meetings outside Egypt until "the situation in the Middle East becomes clear" and until "Egypt returns to the Arab Camp."

He said: "The Arabs have decided that it would not be logical to keep the League headquarters in Egypt where there will be an Israeli embassy."

Riad said future meetings would take place in various Arab capitals. He added that Tunis, Baghdad and Damascus had been mentioned as possible venues for the temporary headquarters of the League.

A final decision would be taken by Arab foreign ministers when they meet in Baghdad after any signing of an Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty, he said.

Earlier in the day the leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization said in Baghdad that the resolutions adopted at the summit would lead to increased commando operations against Israel.

Yasser Arafat told a news conference the summit had achieved "magnificent, successful and important results."

He said this was because of what he called the historic meeting last month between Presidents Hafez Assad of Syria and Ahmad Hassan Bakr of Iraq which resulted in their signing a "national charter for joint action."

Arafat said a measure of the summit's success was its reaffirmation of the Rabat and Algiers summit decisions regarding the PLO as the sole legitimate representative of Palestinians, and the right to a homeland.

"The conference has laid down the framework for a just settlement and has proved that the future of the Arab region cannot be decided at Camp David or Blair House," he added that "we decide the map and the future of this region, and peace cannot be exported to us from Camp David."

Iraqi newspapers Monday welcomed the outcome of the summit, saying the meeting achieved important results.

The government newspaper "Al-Jumhuriya" said in a commentary "the outcome of the historic gathering is a big success not only because of the difficult situation that preceded it, but also because the summit shoulders major responsibilities...."

"Al-Thawra," organ of the ruling Iraqi Arab Baath Socialist Party, described the summit as the most important such conference held so far.

Meanwhile, Lebanese newspapers reported Monday that the summit has decided to impose a total boycott on Egypt if President Sadat signs a peace treaty with Israel.

The pro-Iraqi "Al-Liwa" and the usually well-informed daily "As Safir" reported from Baghdad that secret resolutions adopted by the summit included one which called for boycotting the Cairo government "politically, economically and militarily" on signing a peace treaty with Israel.

The newspapers said the summit had also decided to move

JEDDAH, Nov. 6 (SPA)—Crown Prince Fahd said Monday Saudi Arabia insists on restoring Jerusalem to Arab sovereignty as a priority for peace in the Middle East.

"Restoration of sacred Jerusalem and realizing the will, sovereignty and entity of the Palestinian people are prerequisites for a just Middle East peace," said Prince Fahd.

The prince added that the Saudi government could never agree to abandon a crucial Islamic issue like that of occupied Jerusalem. He said that Jerusalem, as the first Qibla and third holiest place in Islam is too important to Muslims to be abandoned.

Speaking to SPA on his return from the Arab summit in Baghdad, Prince Fahd said that conference was held to discuss the Camp David accords which were deemed unacceptable and inadequate to bring about a just peace in the region. He said the accords did not ensure complete Israeli withdrawal from all the occupied Arab lands, recognition of the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people including their right to return to their homeland, their right to self-determination and independent state.

The prince said the Camp David accords neglected the issue of Jerusalem and did not stress Israeli withdrawal from the city and the restoration of Arab sovereignty over it. "This is something that no Muslim and no Muslim state will ever accept," the prince said.

"Saudi Arabia, which is very concerned with every Islamic issue in the world, is even more so with that of Jerusalem," the prince said. "Jerusalem is a great responsibility which we shoulder, it is intertwined in every Muslim heart, it is part of every Muslim feelings. We are proud to carry this historic responsibility and obligation that we neither can nor want to forfeit."

"This is in addition to the question of the Arab people of Palestine who have been uprooted and rendered homeless," he said. "Israel usurped our land, profaned our holy places in Jerusalem without regard to Muslim susceptibilities, human rights, international obligations, moral principles or U.N. resolutions," Prince Fahd added. "We, who have chosen to be an Islamic state, constitutionally, politically, intellectually and as a system, cannot forget the wish of the late King Faisal, to pray in Holy Jerusalem." (Continued on back page)

Return of Jerusalem priority for Mideast peace, Fahd says

Hussein told

Mideast peace talks supported by Bonn

BONN, Nov. 6 (R)—West German President Walter Scheel told King Hussein of Jordan Monday that his country supported the Egyptian-Israeli peace negotiations, official West German sources said.

But the Jordanian leader told President Scheel that any Middle East peace treaty must be a general Arab-Israeli agreement, the sources said.

The two heads of state were talking over lunch after King Hussein arrived for a week-long state visit.

The Jordanian monarch came to Bonn direct from the Arab League summit in Baghdad.

West Germany and its Common Market partners support the Camp David accords between Egypt and Israel as a first step toward an overall Middle East settlement.

President Scheel put this view again Monday, the sources said. The West German government wants to involve King Hussein more closely in the process of Middle East peacemaking touched off by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's visit to Jerusalem a year ago.

But an Arab diplomatic source in Bonn said: "Jordan wants peace, but it is highly unlikely that King Hussein will be persuaded to support President Sadat's peace moves."

King Hussein later discussed the Middle East with West German parliamentarians.

Military government appointed in Iran

TEHRAN, Nov. 6 (AP)—Iran's military government, moving forcefully to restore order Monday on its first day in office, imposed local press censorship, arrested five editors and dispatched troops to disperse rioters.

The Shah, announcing the new government in a nationwide radio address, pledged that "past mistakes will not be repeated."

The Shah appointed a new government after riots here Sunday in which mobs ransacked businesses, hotels and theaters and set fire to the British Embassy. Those riots capped weeks of unrest throughout the nation.

Gen. Gholam-Reza Azhari, chief of staff of the armed forces, was named prime minister. He was expected to put an end to the violent demonstrations before returning the nation to civilian rule.

The military imposed censorship on the local press, radio and television. There was no censorship of outgoing news despatches.

About five editors were arrested and 30 were on a wanted list accused of inciting public unrest.

As the prime minister introduced his cabinet to the Shah at Naftaran Palace, sporadic rioting continued near Tehran University and in a suburb. Troops fired automatic weapons in the air to disperse mobs burning and looting mostly bank branches and liquor stores.

In Washington the United States expressed support Monday for the Shah's decision to form a military government. "I do not believe it is a mistake to believe that the Shah's government is a threat to the monarchy."

State Department Press Officer Jill Schuker said the Shah, in moving toward military rule, acted under his authority and made the move when it became apparent that a new civilian government could not be appointed.

Although other officials privately expressed concern that the anti-Shah uprising could lead to his ouster, Schuker said the Department believes he will be able to overcome his present difficulties.

The military governor of Tehran, meanwhile, reported that no deaths in Monday's hit-and-run clashes between rioters and soldiers. Unconfirmed reports said many persons were injured. The governor has warned that troops have been instructed to deal firmly with martial law violators.

There were no reports of unrest elsewhere in the country except in Abadan, site of the world's largest oil refinery. Police said that small groups demonstrated in downtown Abadan "but we hardly paid any attention to them" as they dispersed and went home.

Azhari's 10-member cabinet, including six generals and an admiral, retained five ministers of Prime Minister Jastad Sharif-Emami's outgoing cabinet. Sharif-Emami, who formed a "national reconciliation" government two months earlier, resigned Sunday.

"The killings and chaos in many parts of the country reached such a stage as to endanger the country's independence," the Shah said in his radio address.

The Shah conceded, however, that his regime "has been guilty of corruption and illegal acts, as his opponents have charged."

The monarch also appealed for support from Shiite Muslims, who represent 90 per cent of the country's people and whose leaders have led opposition to the government. Azhari is said to be a devout Shiite, as was Sharif-Emami.

"I am aware that under the name of preventing chaos and unrest, there is a possibility that past mistakes of suppression would be repeated," the Shah said. "Also under the name of national interest... financial corruption and political corruption may be established."

"But as your king who has taken an oath to protect the sovereignty of the country and religious unity and the religion, I once again take an oath in the presence of the people of Iran to guarantee that the past mistakes of unlawfulness, cruelty and corruption will not be repeated."

A strike of telecommunications technicians ended Monday. Technicians struck on Saturday in solidarity with other strikers in various industries including the oil industry. The strikers seek political concessions including the end of martial law and the release of political prisoners.

The reaction to the new government was considered limited and mild.

Darius Forohar, spokesman for the main opposition groups under the umbrella of the National Front, called on the people "not to surrender to illogical excitement."

In Paris Iranian opposition leader Karim Sanjaby said Monday that the "popular movement will continue its struggle" in Iran "as long as Shah remains in power."

Komoto quoted Schlesinger as saying that, if the political unrest in Iran did not end before the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) held its annual meeting in Abu Dhabi Dec. 15, the Organization's policy might be seriously affected.

The American minister said that if the cutback lasted until after the OPEC meeting began, the world's oil market might be thrown into confusion regardless of price decisions, Komoto added.

To facilitate talks

Egypt may submit new peace proposals

CAIRO, Nov. 6 (Agencies)—Egypt may submit "new points and proposals" to the Washington peace talks with Israel in an attempt to overcome difficulties holding up signature of an accord between the two countries, a senior official said Monday.

The official, Osama al-Baz, one of the two top diplomats at the Blair House negotiating table, made the statement to reporters following a two and half hour meeting between negotiators and a high-level committee appointed by President Anwar Sadat to review the draft accords.

Egypt has insisted that a peace accord with Israel must be linked to satisfactory negotiations over the Israeli-held West Bank of Jordan and the Gaza Strip, saying a settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict cannot be achieved if legal rights of Palestinians are ignored. Israel maintains there should be no conditions to an agreement. Baz said the ability to overcome the difficulties would depend on new points and proposals both Egyptian and Israeli negotiators take to Washington after consultations with their governments.

Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman is seeking his government's approval of "certain points" in the treaty's military annex, Baz said.

Asked whether the Egyptian proposals would result in a substantial change in the draft accords, Baz said "I do not think so."

He said signature of the accords would "depend on what happens after we get back" to Washington and asserted that reports of a possible signature this weekend "are very premature."

Hard Line
In a statement expected to add to the difficulties at the peace talks, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin Sunday night urged the United States to give a lead by recognizing Jerusalem as the capital of Israel.

He told a dinner in Los Angeles to raise Israeli bonds, that it was "high time" that America recognized Jerusalem as the Israeli capital.

"Then all other countries will follow suit," he added.

Working mothers to have Jeddah day care center

JEDDAH, Nov. 6 — Saudi working mothers will soon have a nursery for their babies during working hours, "Al-Medina" reported Monday.

According to the paper, the Faisal Women's Society of Jeddah is planning to open a nursery with a section for the children of women prisoners and another for infants.

had arrived in Saudi Arabia by midnight Sunday, it was announced here Monday — an increase of 109,383 pilgrims, or 15 per cent over the equivalent day last year.

Of these, 504,220 arrived by air, 252,454 by road and 98,283 by sea.

By midnight Sunday, 18,471 busloads of pilgrims had arrived.

The paper quoted the chairman of the society's nursing committee as saying that preference will be given to Saudi working mothers, who will pay SR 200 monthly for babies between the ages of one and two and a half.

Meanwhile, the society has called on interested and competent women to join the home.

According to the General Traffic Department, 668,940 cars entered Jeddah and 609,500 left, while 59,440 stayed behind in Mecca.

"Al-Medina" reported Monday that Governor of Mecca Prince Fawaz had thanked the owners of Badr Automatic Bakeries in Mecca for their readiness to supply bread during the pilgrimage and Eid Al-Adha.

The governor urged them to ensure bread for pilgrims and local residents through the pilgrims and local residents through the pilgrimage.

The bakeries, which make 24,000 loaves of bread an hour, will work round the clock to supply an estimated 576,000 loaves every day during the season.

Industry meet to be hosted by Algosaibi

JEDDAH, Nov. 6 — Ministry of Industry and Electricity Dr. Ghazi Algosaibi will organize a seminar Nov. 28 to discuss the problems of local industries.

"Al-Medina" said Monday that the minister has invited many eminent personalities, industrialists and others interested in industry to attend.

The seminar, which is part of the celebrations to mark the first Saudi Industry Day, will be held at Riyadh International Hotel.

Four hurt in Jeddah

Mecca crash kills one

MECCA, Nov. 6 — One man died and another was injured when two cars collided in Mecca Sunday, according to "Al-Bilad."

A 63-year old man sustained burns and injuries when a stove blew up in his flat causing a fire. Another fire. Another fire destroyed a quantity of sponge material while a third one gutted a large heap of timber.

In Jeddah Sunday, four men were hurt in separate accidents including one who was seriously injured when a driver he had asked to push his stalled car drove into him before he could jump behind the steering wheel.

Muslim leaders urged to implement Sharia

MECCA, Nov. 6 (SPA) — The seventh World Islamic Seminar has urged Muslim leaders to enforce the Sharia and called upon legal institutions to enact laws on the basis of the Holy Quran and the Prophet's Traditions.

The four-day session, which ended here Saturday, recommended that cables be sent to those Islamic governments which have announced their decision to enforce the Sharia, asking them to go ahead, and to work to enable Muslim religious leaders to propagate Islam.

The seminar appealed to Islamic governments to work for the liberation of Islamic economy from usury, and asked them to set up Islamic banks and to educate Muslims in Islamic economics.

It urged them to support an association of Muslim writers and journalists and a meeting of information ministers of the Islamic countries.

The seminar restated the Arab character of Palestine and said that Jerusalem was an Islamic city belonging to all Muslims.

It reiterated the resolutions of the Arab, Islamic, Non-Aligned and the Organization of African Unity summit conferences that the Palestine

Tigre guerrillas hold American pilot from locust spray copter

KHARTOUM, Nov. 6 (R) — Tigre guerrillas announced Monday that they had captured an American helicopter pilot and three technicians after they landed to repair a stranded locust-control plane.

A spokesman here for the Tigre People's Liberation Front (TPLF) said the helicopter had landed in guerrilla-controlled territory in southwestern Tigre province early last week.

The four men aboard were reported to be safe after being removed, with the helicopter, to a remote TPLF base. An unidentified international humanitarian organization had been contacted about their release.

The pilot was named as George William Krois, 36, reported to be employed by the Canadian firm Highking Helicopters which operates in Ethiopia under contract to the World Health Organization.

The light plane they were trying to repair belonged to the Desert Locust Control Orga-

Pakistan offers reward in hunt for hash runner

KARACHI, Nov. 6 (AP) — Pakistan's Narcotic Control Board has offered what it called a substantial reward for any information leading to the arrest of a Pakistani allegedly linked with hashish traffickers in the United States.

The board said the offer was made in connection with the recent arrest of three American citizens in New York and the seizure of about 450 kilograms of hashish from them.

It identified the man as Asif Ali Khan and said he is an official of the Lahore Flying Club who has fled from his home in Lahore.

nization (DLCO), a seven-nation monitoring body based in Addis Ababa. The plane, which had crashlanded, had been repaired and would be returned to the organization.

Krois is a former captain in the United States Army and a veteran of the Vietnam War, according to the spokesman, who had not details yet on the three Ethiopian technicians.

The TPLF was investigating to see if there was any military connection with the helicopter and crew, but added that no demands or conditions for their release had been put forward.

"We are discussing it now but we don't want to make a hasty decision on this."

The DLCO plane is apparently being treated as a separate matter and the DLCO office in Khartoum has been told the location of the plane and promised safe passage to retrieve it, according to the spokesman.

"We don't want to disrupt the anti-locust campaign because it affects people of Tigre and the surrounding areas."

The TPLF is a rural-based guerrilla group which has been operating against the Ethiopian government in Tigre since 1975. It recently fought beside Eritrean guerrillas near the border between Tigre and Eritrea during Ethiopia's offensive to regain control of the territory.

Bangladesh bus crash kills 11

DACCA, Nov. 6 (AP) — Eleven persons were killed Saturday when a passenger bus skidded and hit a roadside tree near Barabhanbaria, about 64 kilometers from Dacca, officials reported Monday.

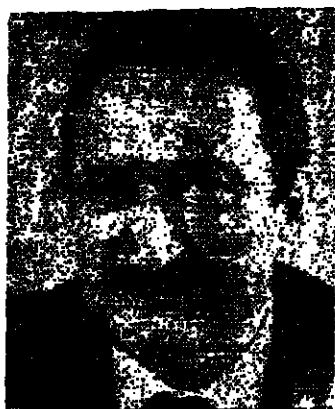

Opposition says no to Ecevit on violence

ANKARA, Nov. 6 (R) — Opposition leaders Monday condemned Premier Ecevit's latest plans to curb the political violence which has taken more than 500 lives in Turkey this year.

In an effort to trace the people behind the violence, Ecevit said Sunday his government planned to bend the law to allow substantial reductions in sentences for anyone giving evidence leading to the arrest of the ringleaders.

Former Premier Süleiman Demirel, leader of the main opposition Justice Party, and Alpaslan Türkeş, head of the extreme rightwing Nationalist Movement Party, condemned the plans in separate press conferences.

They argued that such moves

were against the principles of the constitution and would lead to an avalanche of false evidence.

Three more deaths were reported Monday. Turkish radio said a man was murdered in a building belonging to the NMP in Istanbul and his alleged killer had given himself up to the police.

In the eastern town of Elazig, hit by some of the worst violence this year, a man was shot dead on the street. Another died in hospital in the southern city of Adan after being stabbed Sunday night.

Turkey, U.S. agree to exchange inmates

ANKARA, Nov. 6 (R) — Turkish and U.S. negotiators have reached broad agreement on a prisoner transfer treaty, which would enable their nationals to serve out jail terms in their homeland, U.S. officials said Monday.

Four Americans are serving long jail terms in Turkey for drug offences while nine Turks are reported to be in U.S. jails.

The officials said the two sides worked out drafts of a treaty during a week of talks ending on Friday, and they would submit them to the relevant authorities in their own countries.

Some minor technical difficulties had still to be resolved, but it was hoped these could be sorted out.

A U.S. Defense Department team is also in Ankara to discuss supplies of arms.

The team, led by the Pentagon's director of international weapons programs, Vitalij

Garber, is to go on to Greece later this week for similar talks.

Turkey wants to build up its defense industry to move away from reliance on the United States for military equipment and to save vital foreign exchange, and government leaders have suggested joint production projects with some of its NATO allies.

Bonn nationals in Iran not advised to evacuate

BONN, Nov. 6 (Agencies) — The West German government said Monday it sees no reason to recommend its 19,000 nationals in Iran to return home, but the Foreign Ministry advised them to stay indoors.

Turkish withdrawal unacceptable Denktash rejects plan for Cyprus solution

UNITED NATIONS, Nov. 6 (AP) — Rauf Denktash, the Turkish Cypriot leader Monday rejected a proposal some nonaligned nations hoped would lead to settlement of Greek and Turkish differences over Cyprus.

Denktash threatened that the island's Turks would dissociate from the nonaligned contact group working on the problem unless major changes in the proposal were made.

The contact group consisting of Algeria, India, Yugoslavia, Guyana, Mali and Sri Lanka, was seeking, as it does each year, to produce a resolution the General Assembly could adopt at the end of the four-day Cyprus debate which was scheduled to begin Monday.

"This is the severest, most retrogressive and unduly negative draft prepared by the contact group," said Denktash, president of the federated state that the Turkish Cypriots proclaimed in 1975 in Turkish-held north Cyprus.

His comments, prepared for delivery to the group, were made available to the Associated Press.

"The resolution not only fails to reflect the realities on the island, but will also adversely affect the prospects for a negotiated solution to the Cyprus problem," he declared, adding that it needed more than just "minor changes in a few paragraphs."

The draft contains suggestions made by both Turkish and Greek Cypriots, and repeats a Security Council proposal that foreign troops be removed. Turkey had stated officially "that it would withdraw all its troops from the island once a satisfactory solution to the Cyprus problem had been achieved." But until the Cyprus problem was finally solved with effective guarantees for "the security of the life and property of the Turkish Cypriot community, the complete withdrawal of the Turkish forces would not be feasible."

U.S., Seoul merge military commands in ceremony today

SEOUL, Nov. 6 (AP) — The United States and South Korea will inaugurate their Combined Forces Command here Tuesday, a move U.S. Secretary of Defense Harold Brown called "a most significant step" for an effective joint defense.

Brown flew in Monday to attend the ceremony opening the force, designed to improve South Korea's defense against the north in connection with the American pullout of ground combat troops.

He said in an arrival statement that the activation "demonstrates the resolve of our two nations to preserve defense adequate to deter aggression and contribute to peace and stability in northeast Asia."

Army cadet gets Annapolis' goat for thirty days

COOPERSTOWN, New York, Nov. 6 (AP) — A West Point prankster got the U.S. naval academy's goat and hid the mascot on an upstate New York dairy farm for a month. But the mischief-minded army cadet is facing possible confinement to quarters and unable to visit the farmer's daughter who helped him keep the navy's billy.

Sophomore cadet Garon Reeves faces demerits and walking tours for his successful abduction of Bill XXI, army spokesman Lt. Col. Jere Forbus said Sunday night.

Forbus said Sgt. Major S. A. Bendoian came to the farm Thursday with a veterinarian, stayed for lunch and took Bill XXI back to West Point for shipment to Annapolis, Maryland.

The farmer in the story is Tony Schleier, who spent 23 years in the army and is a sergeant in the army reserve.

An agreement between the two service academies bars the traditional prank of stealing each other's mascot and provides for stiff penalties, one of which could restrict Reeves to quarters except for the game itself.

The new command will be led by Gen. John W. Vessey Jr., who is to retain the posts of commander of all American forces in Korea and the United Nations Command. His deputy will be a Korean four-star general and staff members will be equally provided by the two countries for.

The two allies agreed to form the command last year when Brown was here to attend an annual security consultative conference, mainly to discuss the proposed American pullout and ways to compensate for the withdrawal. American air and naval elements are to be let in place.

One aide accompanying Brown said the current visit was more political than military in its significance.

It was seen as certain that Korean officials would bring up the impact of the recently ratified Japan-China Peace and Friendship Treaty on Korean security and the recent discovery of another communist infiltration tunnel under the demilitarized zone near Pannunjom.

These Koreans, citing the tunnel case, among other things, were expected to stress that North Korea still poses a serious threat. Seoul has rejected Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping's remark on his recent visit to Japan that no tension existed in Korea.

Apparently in anticipation of such concerns, Brown said in his arrival statement that the activation of the new command "is new evidence that the United States will honor its security commitment to the Republic of Korea. We take this commitment with utmost seriousness."

U.S. businessman held in Russia for accident

MOSCOW, Nov. 6 (AP) — An American businessman has been told he may not leave the Soviet Union because he was involved in a traffic accident a week ago and is needed for further questioning, U.S. officials said Monday.

Leo R. Sonner, 32, is the Moscow representative of Dow Chemical Corp. and arrived a year ago.

Sonner told the U.S. embassy he was involved in an accident Oct. 30 in which a pedestrian walked or dashed into the side of his car. Police questioned him at the scene of the accident.

The embassy was notified Saturday by the Ministry of Foreign Trade that Sonner would be needed for further questioning Thursday, officials said. The embassy was asked to insure that Sonner not leave the country.

Sonner was not immediately available for comment but sources said he was treating the incident as a routine traffic accident.

A U.S. embassy spokesman declined to speculate about a connection between Sonner's case and the 50-year sentences handed to two Russians by a N.J. court on conviction of espionage.

'Foreigners only' signs proliferate

Italians need not apply for Rome flats

ROME, Nov. 6 (AP) — Italians are not welcome in Rome, at least not by the Roman landlords who place their apartment advertisements in newspapers.

"Foreigners only," "Japanese preferred," "Western European diplomats only." These conditions appear routinely—often in bold letters—in offices both in Italian and English.

"The apartment market is very tight," says Daniela Genesi, a Rome real estate agent. "And if you are an Italian, and I don't care if you are a banker or a wealthy businessman, you shouldn't expect to get a place through newspapers or agencies. My advice? Work through your personal friends."

One American diplomat had trouble passing as a foreigner—he spoke Italian too well—and had to get a letter from his embassy to persuade his landlord to agree to a lease.

Arguments favoring foreign tenants are diverse and frivolous. Foreigners are better housekeepers. They have fewer children. They pay on time. They may even agree to pay in foreign money the landlords could use to support their children abroad or deposit in foreign accounts and save trouble circumventing government restrictions.

Foreigners also don't insist on long leases and leave when the contracts expire. Frequent turnovers often mean frequent rent increases.

Brokers agree, however, that the most important reason the landlords opt for short-term leases by foreigners is the uncertainty created by the new controversial rent law. Equo Canone (fair rent), which went into force Nov. 1.

Hammered out after years of bitter debate in parliament, the rent stabilization law severely limits the amount the landlords can charge, and many real estate brokers claim that under the law the landlords are better off leaving flats empty.

Coachdrivers strike against new Rome law

ROME, Nov. 6 (AP) — The men who drive Rome's horse-drawn coaches went on a 24-hour strike Monday to protest a decision by the city government banning them from some historic and favorite tourist sections.

All 79 coaches massed in central Piazza Venezia, not far from the city hall, in a peaceful demonstration.

Some of the demonstrators carried such signs as: "After having carried monarchs and popes, Roman 'boticelle'—coaches—risk disappearing because of the city government's decision."

The coachmen said the city has barred them to ease the flow of traffic in the narrow streets of Rome.

Unions order work to begin

New Yorkers get papers after 3 months

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP) — Newsrooms and pressrooms came alive as the "New York Times" and "Daily News" went to press Monday, ending the city's three-month newspaper blackout.

The "News" put together a large edition of about 200 pages, topped with the headline "Hello There, Remember Us?" the "News" said it would print its normal press run of nearly 2 million copies — the largest circulation in the country.

90-Day Roundup
The "Times", with a circulation of almost 900,000 third largest in the country, printed an edition which included nine pages reviewing events which occurred since the paper last published, including the reign of Pope John Paul I, the Camp David Middle East accord and the New York Yankees' world series victory. The "Times" front page looked much like any day's, with stories on the upcoming election, on unrest in Iran and on border clashes between China and Vietnam. The paper printed only two of the four normal sections.

With tentative agreements with striking unions in hand, the Allied Printing Trades Council — an umbrella coalition of the newspaper unions — told employees of the two big morning papers to report for work Sunday for the first time since Aug. 9.

Together the papers serve some 3 million readers.

Late-Night Accord
All but one of the unions involved had ratified the agreements by Sunday evening. The Newspaper Guild, representing editors and reporters, followed suit shortly after 1 a.m. Monday, ratifying its agreement with the "Times" by a 226-to-121 vote. The Guild called its strike at the "Times" only Saturday night and talks stalled on several demands, including a non-discrimination clause to protect homosexuals. The coalition made it clear that other unions would not long support a guild strike.

Dominoes Fall
Stereotypers were the first of four unions taking ratification votes Sunday to accept contracts. The union voted 256-44 to go back to work. Printers, paperhandlers and machinists followed with smooth ratification of their contracts before 6 p.m. By then, editors at the "Times" and "News" had completed most of their work on Monday editions. Stereotypers and paperhandlers reached tentative agreement with the newspapers Saturday night.

Chinese reported building Cambodia military airport

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP) — China apparently is helping build a new airport in Cambodia capable of handling jet fighters and bombers, according to U.S. intelligence reports.

Sources who declined to be identified said the airport northwest of Phnom Penh should be completed in the next few months. They believe China may then provide Cambodia with the jet warplanes it now lacks.

This could cause some problems for Vietnam, whose large air force of mixed Soviet and U.S.-built jets has enjoyed unopposed air superiority over the border battle areas. Cambodia now has only a small air force of mostly light, propeller-driven planes.

U.S. analysts doubt that China will involve itself in the Cambodia-Vietnam war on any major scale, although the Chinese are expected to continue sending Cambodia arms. China already has given Cambodia 130-millimeter artillery, air defense weapons, tanks, armored troop carriers and trucks, U.S. intelligence reports have indicated.

Intelligence officials are watching for Vietnamese military moves now that the rainy season is ending.

followed with smooth ratification of their contracts before 6 p.m. By then, editors at the "Times" and "News" had completed most of their work on Monday editions. Stereotypers and paperhandlers reached tentative agreement with the newspapers Saturday night.

All the contracts agreed upon call for a pay increase of 68 dollars a week over a three-year period. The Guild had gone on strike in a dispute over fringe benefits, job security and jurisdiction. The "Times" chapter said it wanted the same benefits accorded Guild members at the "Daily News," who those employees ended a 10-day strike in June.

The printers walked out Nov. 9, closing the "Times," "Daily News" and the "New York Post." Their contract would be six years and guarantee all their 1,508 members work in 1984, while at the same time allowing publishers to reduce manning to levels commensurate with those of competitors in the suburbs.

Ten of the 11 unions in been without contracts at a three newspapers since March 30.

The "Post" broke away from the publishers' front to resume publishing Oct. 5 under agreement with its unions to make the deals they finally got with the other dailies.

Dogfights staged in U.K. as sport, newspaper says

LONDON, Nov. 6 (AP) — Fights between dogs are being staged for profit in animal-loving Britain, the "Sunday Telegraph" reported.

Gambblers stake up to $20,000 as bull terriers and other dogs battle on farms in southwest England and elsewhere, the paper said.

The report was confirmed by the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (RSPCA).

The "Sunday Telegraph" published gory accounts from eyewitnesses of recent dogfights. They said the fights can last anywhere from a few seconds to 15 minutes, and one animal is usually dead or badly mauled at the end.

A leading British dog breeder, Beatrice Steer of Plymouth, told the "Telegraph" she has given up her business after learning that some of her Staffordshire bull terriers had been used.

Cockfighting was banned in Britain in 1849 and organized dogfights have been illegal here for 60 years.

The "Telegraph" said gang operating in Southwest England have arranged as many as 10 fights a year.

Anyone convicted of organizing a dogfight can be jailed for three months or fined the equivalent of $1,000.

Amin's 34th child named Kagera River

NAIROBI, Nov. 6 (R) — President Idi Amin has named his newly-born 34th child Kagera River, Uganda Radio reported Sunday.

The baby was born to Senior Wife Madina during Uganda's annexation of a strip of Tanzanian land.

Madina gave birth to twins on Aug. 1 last year, bringing the number of children fathered by Amin to 34.

India reported able to build intermediate range missiles

NEW DELHI, Nov. 6 (R) — India can build intermediate-range ballistic missiles, the Press Trust of India (PTI) quoted a senior scientist as saying Monday.

The chairman of India's Space Commission, Prof. Satish Dawan, told newsmen visiting space and rocket installations in south India that the National Space Research Organisation (ISRO) could make missiles if the military needed them.

He made it clear that at present ISRO's rocket program was a peaceful one aimed at developing rockets to put satellites in orbit.

News men were told the question of making long-range ballistic missiles was hypothetical because they were normally intended to carry nuclear warheads, ruled out by Prime Minister Desai.

PTI said the question of India's missile capability was raised by newsmen who were shown various stages of construction of a giant four-stage rocket nearing completion at the Vikram Sarabhai Space Center at Thumba near the Kerala state capital of Thiruvananthapuram.

The 18-ton rocket, called the Satellite Launch Vehicle-3 (SLV-3), is scheduled to carry a 40-kilogram technological satellite into near-earth orbit in the middle of next year.

It would have a range of over 2,500 miles, and its fourth stage could theoretically be replaced by a warhead, experts told the press party. "As a rule of thumb," one was quoted as saying, "a country that can launch satellites in near-earth orbit can be said to have the capability to build IRBMs (intermediate-range ballistic missiles)."

Central Delhi curfewed after bloody Sikh riots

NEW DELHI, Nov. 6 (R) — Police Monday extended a curfew over an area of central New Delhi to prevent further trouble from Sikh demonstrators who battled them in the city's streets Sunday.

Three people, including a policeman and a Sikh leader, died in the fighting and 50 police and demonstrators were injured.

The curfew, imposed over a wide area Sunday afternoon, was extended until 5 a.m. Tuesday around the two big Sikh gurdwaras, Onoangla Sahib and Rakab Ganj near Parliament House.

Orders banning the assembly of more than five people were proclaimed over the whole of the Indian capital for the next week.

More than 5,000 men of the para-military Central Reserve Police and border security force were ordered into New Delhi to assist city police, press reports said.

The trouble flared when Akali Sikhs brandishing swords and sticks protested against the three-day convention here of the Virankari sect, which orthodox Sikhs regard as outcast and a mockery of the religion.

After death threat from rival family

Mafia guarded boss in jail, 'Time' says

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP) — Reputed organized crime chief Carmine Galante, fearing for his life at the hands of rivals, managed to place two bodyguards outside his cell at prisons in New York and Connecticut, according to "Time" magazine.

"Time" says that two Mafia "soldiers" were permitted to enter the Metropolitan Correctional Center "with unidentified inside help" each night to protect Galante shortly after he was re-arrested last spring.

But the "New York Post," in its Sunday edition, quoted Galante as saying the alleged death threat was "baloney" and merely harassment on the part of government officials.

An officer at the center, said Sunday night of the magazine report: "That's wrong...We would never let something like that go on."

Police recognize Galante, 67, as ruler of the Joseph Bonanno crime family, one-time heir apparent to the title of "boss of bosses" of organized crime.

Galante was returned to prison to serve the final 3½ years of a 20-year sentence for narcotics trafficking. He had been on parole for three years, but was picked up again for associating with known criminals. Before being transferred to an isolation cell at the Federal prison in Danbury, Connecticut Oct. 18, "Time" said Galante received word an attempt would be made on his life.

The magazine said: "He soon learned that killers from two families were trying to get him...Knowing how easily he could be assassinated in prison, Galante arranged to have his bodyguards take up their nighttime baby-sitting beside his cell."

The bodyguards followed Galante to Connecticut and took up their vigil there amid reports that underworld killer, Carmine "The Snake" Persico, was trying to get transferred to

Gunmen kill Civil Guard leaving Basque football match

TOLOSA, Spain, Nov. 6 (R) — Gunmen opened fire on Civil Guards leaving a football match here, killing one and wounding another.

A 12-year-old boy was also hit twice by bullets in the attack on the para-military Civil Guards, who had been on duty Sunday at the match in this Basque town.

ETA gunmen killed three Civil Guards in similar fashion last month in Guetcho, near Bilbao, as they returned to their barracks after a football match.

Des Moines store blast claims at least 4 lives

DES MOINES, Iowa Nov. 6 (AP) — An explosion and fire ripped through a department store at a Des Moines shopping center Sunday, killing at least four employees.

The fire raged out of control five hours after the explosion. Firefighters were unable to remove the bodies immediately from the second floor of the building.

The dead were two men and two women.

There were believed to be 15 to 20 persons, all employees, in the Youngs Department Store at the time of the explosion, and officials at first believed all had left the building safely.

But a log book kept at the entrance to register those entering and leaving was destroyed and there was no accurate record of who was inside.

Month before debate

Lawyers start probe into Pretoria scandal

PRETORIA, Nov. 6 (R) — A judge and two top lawyers Monday began investigating a scandal shaking the South African government over alleged misuse of taxpayers' money for a secret "dirty tricks" department.

In the hottest political controversy to wrack the National Party since it came to power 30 years ago, the three-man judicial commission of inquiry has been given exactly one month to uncover the facts.

Parliament will then meet, on Dec. 7, in its first emergency session since it agonized over whether to join World War II in September 1939. Then, it voted to support Britain despite protest from such National Party figures as John Vorster.

This time, it is due to examine and if necessary act on the commission's report into the covert activities of the now defunct Department of Information. Parliament has already been told these were paid for in part by secret funds allocated by then Prime Minister John Vorster.

2½-year-old boy found alive after 77 hours outdoors

BELGRADE, Nov. 6 (AP) — A lightly-dressed two-and-a-half-year-old boy who escaped a police dragnet was discovered alive after 77 hours of exposure in a wood, press reports said Monday.

Cedo Huremovic disappeared from his grandfather's backyard on Tuesday morning, while his parents were working nearby the industrial city of Velenje.

Police and firemen organized a dragnet and divers checked a nearby lake, but without success.

After 77 hours the boy was found by mushroom pickers. "The boy was lying under a tree, almost frozen," one said.

nister John Vorster.

Vorster resigned on health grounds in September and is now ceremonial state president. Evidence released last week by another inquiry commission, not directly related to the information scandal, indicated that both Vorster and his former head of state security, General Hendrick van den Bergh, were aware of some of the covert activities.

Ryder wins damages on BL bribery

LONDON, Nov. 6 (R)

Lord Ryder, former chairman of the National Enterprise Board, Britain's state holding company, Monday accepted substantial damages from a newspaper which said he was involved in a bribery plot with the British Leyland motor firm.

He brought the libel action against Associated Newspapers, publishers of the "Daily Mail" newspaper, which made the charge, and its editor, David English.

The allegation was based on a letter, which later turned out to be a forgery, purporting to be from Lord Ryder to Alex Park, chief executive of British Leyland. It said the NEB approved of the motor giant, in which it has a major stake, bribing clients abroad to win orders.

Last August Graham Barton, a former Leyland executive, was jailed for two years after admitting forging the letter. He was also convicted of dishonestly obtaining 15,000 sterling ($30,000) from the "Daily Mail" by claiming the letter was genuine.

The newspaper withdrew the allegation against Lord Ryder, who was not in court Monday.

FOCUS ON JERUSALEM

In one of the most forceful statements ever made by a Muslim leader, Prince Fahd gave the question of Islamic attachment to Jerusalem the importance it deserves. He said that no Muslim or Islamic state can agree to forfeit Islamic rights to the holy city, the third holiest place in Islam.

Here lies much of the weakness of the Camp David accords. They showed ignorance of the crucial importance of Jerusalem to 750 million Muslims in the world. Both President Carter and President Sadat—although the latter may have tried hard to deal with the issue—believed wrongly that a Sinai settlement, for all that is worth, may be the palliative that could get the Arabs to accept the framework. Little did they know that no self-respecting Muslim—and that includes most of the Arabs—would agree to sign a so-called accord that did not specifically call for the liberation of Jerusalem from Jewish or any other control.

Prince Fahd, as the viceroy of Saudi Arabia which is the custodian of the holy places and the spiritual leader of all Muslims, has minced no words and has left little to the imagination of those concerned with a peaceful settlement in the region.

At present Israel is in an advantageous military position which enables it to scoff at Arab attempts to regain the holy city and other occupied lands. This is so, thanks to massive and largely free American military and economic largesse to that Zionist state. Without this aid the Arabs might have been in a far better position. But as long as the United States continues to replenish the Israeli arsenal with its latest weaponry, the Arabs will have to work harder to strengthen their military capability, until there is a fair balance that would persuade the Israelis to see the senselessness of defying 750 million people by continued aggression in an age when colonialism is already viewed as a sad and demeaning anachronism.

How long can the Israelis go on annexing territory? If they do not realize the insanity of their actions, a time will come when they will be made to do so at a great cost. The British, the French, the Ottomans and before them the Romans and the Persians discovered to their dismay that continued occupation of Arab lands is a costly affair. In the long run, the Zionists are unlikely to fare any better.

RABAT REAFFIRMED

The Americans, Israelis and Egyptians huddled around conference tables at Elak Hodee should take a good look at the communiqué from Baghdad. The news from the Arab world is sobering and realistic and should, once and for ever, quell the unrealistic euphoria of Camp David.

The Arab leaders shifted the focus back where it belongs, and that is on the Palestinian people. A separate peace between Egypt and Israel does nothing to restore Palestinian rights. It does, in fact, make those rights all the more difficult to achieve by freeing the Israelis of their worries on the western front.

The framework for peace documents that came down from Camp David was supposed to continue pressure on Israel to restore Palestinian rights. It should be clear to everyone by now that this document is going nowhere.

A post-mortem on the framework accord might prove instructive for the Americans. The document asked King Hussein of Jordan to do something he had agreed not to do four years ago in Rabat. Jordan was invited to join the Camp David talks in order to violate the basic principle of the Rabat Arab summit: it was agreed then that the Palestine Liberation Organization is the sole legitimate representative of the Palestinian people living in the occupied territories as well as outside.

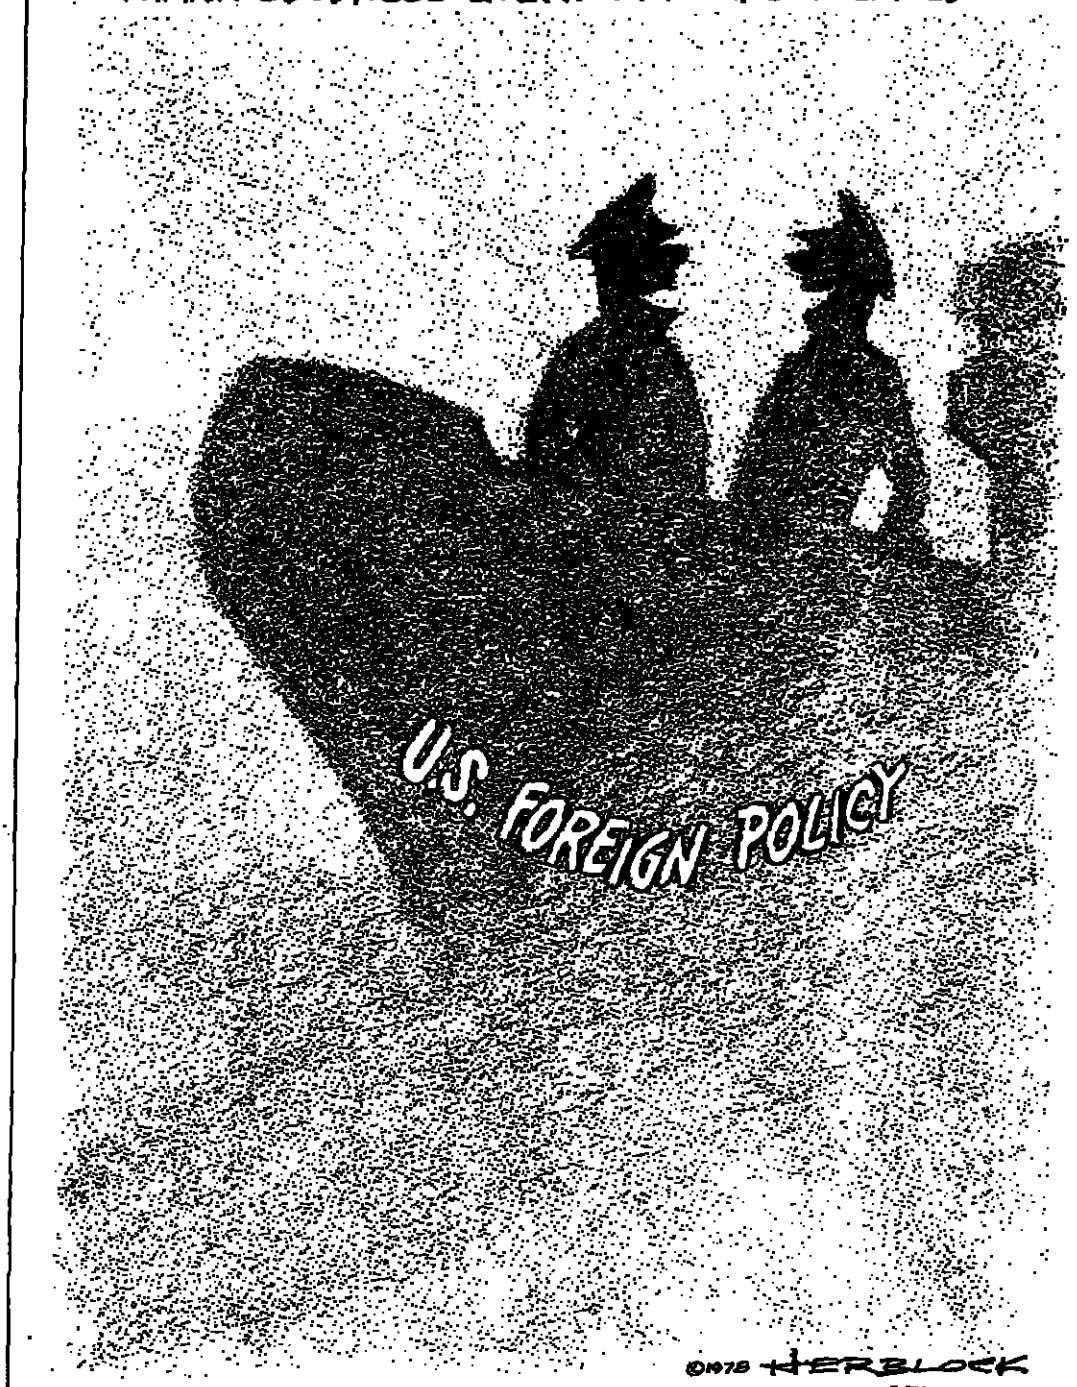

King Hussein could not join Camp David without violating that Rabat pledge, and indeed he did not. Nor, despite the repeated attempts of U.S. State Department representatives to woo them in, did the Palestinian people of the West Bank.

There is no one to negotiate with about the future status of the West Bank and the Gaza Strip but the true representatives of the Palestinian people. Should the Americans find themselves pushing to keep to their present strategy, they will be left with the absurd proposition of having Egypt negotiate treaties with Israel on behalf of the Palestinians in the teeth of a rejection of the moves Egypt has already taken just on behalf of itself.

Rabat remains a firm principle of the Arab nation. It is time for the U.S. government to accept that the Palestinian people represent a country rather than a refugee problem, and to recognize the PLO as that country's representative. Without the PLO, in spite of the jargon rhetoric from Washington these days, there can be no peace in the Middle East.

Rabat made that clear in 1974. For those who weren't listening, Baghdad clarified it in 1978.

(Seven months ago a combined Ethiopian-Cuban force drove Somalia's army from the Ogaden desert, leaving the Ogaden guerrillas who launched the liberation drive 15 years ago fight on, with little outside notice. AP correspondent Brian Jeffries was one of the first Western correspondents allowed to visit the disputed Ogaden region since last March.)

By Brian Jeffries
 TAYIN WATER WELLS,
 Ethiopia —

The look-out perches atop a thorn tree and squints his eyes against the morning sun, alert for any sign of Ethiopian troops on the horizon. Around him hundreds of his fellow guerrillas move quietly through the bush, encircling the town of Kebri Dehare.

The war in the Ogaden is less visible than it was a year ago, but it continues nonetheless. In the barren countryside 650 kilometers east of Addis Ababa, life goes on as it has for generations, nomads raising their camels, sheep and goats on the parched brush. Only when one approaches the battlefield it is apparent that this desert is at war.

Four reporters driving down a dusty road suddenly confront a dusty road suddenly confront the war as a guerrilla leaps forward, calmly levels his gun and orders them to halt. A second guerrilla emerges from the bush to question them. Other men armed with automatic rifles step out of hiding, ready to open fire in case of trouble.

In March, the Ogaden was the scene of fierce battles pitting these ethnic Somali guerrillas of the Western Somali Liberation Front and regular troops from neighboring Somalia against the Ethiopian army and thousands of Cuban troops. The Ethiopians and Cubans, helped by Soviet advisers, mounted a massive counter-offensive that drove the Somali troops back to their homeland and recaptured major settlements from the guerrillas.

The insurgents since have been forced to fight a hit-and-run war. The Ethiopians, with Cuban help, still control the towns, but the WSLF is attempting to strengthen its hold in the countryside and encircle the towns.

WSLF spokesmen say they want to free the area from Ethiopian rule and proclaim a completely independent state. Diplomatic observers say such a state would then probably merge with Somalia.

The jeep trip from the Somali border to the outskirts of the front-line town of Kebri Dehare made it clear the WSLF is in control of the eastern Ogaden region and has the support of the population.

The Tayin Water Wells area, about 24 kilometers east of Kebri Dehare, was as close as the visiting journalists were allowed to travel toward the Ethiopian strongholds.

Asad Bedel Gaboose, a WSLF military commander, was in his headquarters hidden in the hills near Kebri Dehare. The command, always ready to move, was set up beneath a tarpaulin slung between trees and overlaid with branches. Outside, radio operators received Morse-code reports from field positions.

A guerrilla slept on the ground, wrapped in blanket-sized pieces of homespun cotton. An automatic rifle, a pair of suede boots and perhaps a lightweight military uniform are their only possessions.

Asad, 30, said he has been fighting the Ethiopians for several years. He said his guerrillas held the Ethiopians under siege in Kebri Dehare and the nearby villages of Dhure and Werder. The Somali positions around Werder, however, were being rocketed and strafed by Ethiopian fighter jets, Asad said.

"Until recently, the aim of the Ethiopians and their allies was to get control over the population in the areas where they live," he said. "Now they are fighting solely to ensure that supplies reach their troops and to dislodge our guerrilla forces from their supply lines."

Ahmed Hussein Haile, a member of the WSLF central committee, said the guerrillas have been able to gain enough strength since the March setbacks to be active from the Djibouti Railroad in the north of the Ogaden to the Kenyan border in the south.

Ahmad said most of the guerrillas have been concentrated around the northern towns of Dire Dawa, Harrar and Jijiga. Most of the 17,000 Cuban troops in Ethiopia are reported garrisoned in that area.

Asad said his troops on the desert front attack the Ethiopian positions at least once a week.

"I believe we have managed to create demoralization among their ranks," he claimed. "The officers order them to fight while the rank and file are refusing the orders of the officers."

Asad and other senior WSLF officials said they believed the Cubans were becoming demoralized as well. They said the Cubans thought they would be welcomed as conquering heroes, but instead have found that they face a tough adversary, a guerrilla force as tenacious as their own. — (AP)

Leaking to Israel

From our Washington Bureau
 WASHINGTON — Stephen Bryen, a Senate staffer under investigation for the past seven months for possible illegal collaboration with the Israeli government, may soon be the target of a grand jury probe, sources close to the case said last week.

Bryen, accused in March of offering classified Pentagon documents on Saudi airbases to officials of the Israeli Defense Ministry, is still being actively investigated by the U.S. Justice Department, the sources said.

There is a good chance the Justice Department will turn the case over to a federal grand jury early next year for possible prosecution, they added.

Bryen is the senior staff member of the Senate Foreign Relations Middle East subcommittee.

Early last March he held a meeting at a Washington hotel coffee shop with Israeli defense officials. According to a witness who overheard the conversations, Bryen is said to have advised the officials on ways of undermining President Carter's Middle East policy and offered to provide them with a secret Pentagon report on air force bases in Saudi Arabia.

The witness, North Dakota businessman Michael Saba, filed an affidavit on the conversations with the Internal Security Section of the Justice Department's Criminal Division. Saba, who once served as executive director of the National Association of Arab Americans, has been extensively interviewed on the incident by the Justice Department — as has Bryen himself.

The department has taken Saba's charges very seriously, sources said. Bryen is being investigated for possible violations of the Foreign Agents Registration Act and the Espionage Act, they added.

According to congressional sources, Saba's affidavit helped to neutralize plans by the Israeli lobby to launch a major anti-Saudi publicity campaign during the F-15 debate this past summer. Pro-Israeli forces decided to abandon certain efforts to discredit the Kingdom publicly in the United States — out of fear that the campaign would prompt pro-Arab lobbyists to play up the Bryen affair.

As it turned out, there was minimal press coverage of the Bryen case in the United States.

Congressional sources pointed out that the Bryen incident was only "the tip of the iceberg," and that the Senate staffer was only one of a number of House and Senate aides who leak information and documents to the Israeli government.

Defense Department sources said the Pentagon has long been wary of providing Bryen with classified materials, since the documents would invariably end up at the Israeli embassy in Washington.

When the Justice Department probe first began, Bryen was put on "administrative leave" by the Foreign Relations Committee.

But he returned to his Senate job several months ago. Informal sources said he was allowed to return to work as a "political favor" to Senator Clifford Case, who serves on the committee.

Case, who leaves the Senate at the end of this year, is the lawmaker who first brought Bryen to Washington as an executive assistant for foreign affairs in 1971.

The Justice Department probe of the Bryen affair has taken longer than expected. Some observers here believe it is being held up for political reasons linked to the delicate peace negotiations now underway between Egypt and Israel.

Sources said the Justice Department would probably wait until the new Congress is seated in January before taking the case before the grand jury. Under U.S. law, a grand jury, composed of more than 12 private citizens, decides whether the government has sufficient evidence to take a case to court.

Commander Zero

By Karen DeYoung
 A SANDINISTA
 TRAINING CAMP —

As he left Managua last August following the daring guerrilla raid he led on Nicaragua's national palace, Eden Pastora, known as "Commander Zero" of the Sandinista National Liberation Front, vowed to a crowd of cheering supporters that he would return.

In recent interviews at his remote guerrilla headquarters, Pastora said he expects eventually to go back to the national palace as Nicaragua's first elected president after the fall of Anastasio Somoza.

More experienced as a military strategist than a politician, Pastora does not suffer from lack of confidence in either field.

What is clear is that, following the palace raid and the appearance of his photograph — complete with grenade-laden bandolier and rife held defiantly in the air — in newspapers throughout the world, Pastora has become perhaps the best known person in Nicaragua next to Somoza.

Pastora is the undisputed military commander of the Sandinistas, a figure approaching the standard of revolutionary charisma set by Cuba's Fidel Castro more than 20 years ago.

But he disputes all such Castro comparisons. "The only thing we have in common," he said, "is that we were both educated by the Jesuits."

The descendant of Sicilian immigrants to Nicaragua, Pastora has spent nearly half his 42 years fighting in the Nicaraguan mountains against the Somoza family and the National Guard it controls.

Pastora said he decided to join the Nicaraguan guerrillas in 1959, when he was studying medicine in Guadalajara, Mexico. We were having lunch one day — my brother, who was also a student, and my mother, who was visiting. There was a radio report of a student massacre in Nicaragua, in Leon. It made a great impact on me.

"There were lots of guerrilla movements in those days — as many movements as there were leaders."

Beginning in the early 1960s, a number of those movements began to merge into the Sandinista National Liberation Front. It is named after Augusto Cesar Sandino, a leader of anti-Somoza forces who was assassinated in 1934.

While other Sandinista leaders tend to downplay training their members have received abroad, Pastora displayed no reticence in noting that "sure, there have been some trained in Cuba," particularly during the early 1970s. "It was the least Cuba could do," he said, "to train the enemies of its enemies," an apparent reference to the launching of the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba from Nicaraguan shores.

But "no matter what Somoza says," Pastora said, "I have had no outside training." Pastora claimed that he would like to see a Costa Rican type democracy in Nicaragua. While he said he has no doubt that the more extreme leftist ideologies of the Sandinistas "will never stop conspiring," he said he believed they would be neutralized "when there is freedom of speech in Nicaragua" which any Communist, conservative, labor leader or liberal can attack anyone he wants to with words.

His most obvious current concern, however, is the Sandinista military situation. During the September civil war, including three unsuccessful Sandinista invasions of Nicaragua from Costa Rica, Pastora claimed, "our losses, among professional cadres, was very small. I would say about 3 per cent out of hundreds of combatants."

The strongest of their three attacks over the Costa Rican border, on Sept. 17, when the Nicaraguan government accused Venezuela, Panama and Costa Rica of assisting the guerrillas, failed for several reasons, Pastora said.

"The arms came late, and we had to walk to the border for a long distance," he said. "There were only 60 of us that got across the border."

Compared to recognized Sandinista political leaders, Pastora appears to have little ideology beyond the eventual installation of a democratic government, which he hopes to lead, in a post-Somoza Nicaragua.

The Sandinistas said that in this guerrilla camp and others inside Nicaragua and in nearby countries, they are training for another attack on the National Guard and its leader, Somoza. Although they will not say when or where the attack will come, they believe its domestic and international repercussions will equal those of the palace raid and bring them closer to toppling Somoza. — (WP)

saudi press review

lective Arab stand" by realizing an Arab Islamic unity to regain Jerusalem from Zionist control. The paper reiterated Prince Fahd's hopes that the next Arab summit will be held in liberated Jerusalem, with Egypt attending.

The "Okaz" editorial said that the success of the Baghdad summit shows clearly the harmony between Saudi Arabia's declared policy and practice. But the success of the summit is also a triumph for all the Arabs on the way to achieve their national ambitions and inter-Arab reconciliation.

One of "Okaz" columnists said that the Minister of Information should attend to the working conditions of professional journalists in this country. The writer said that Mohammed Abdo Yamani, the Minister, is the best man to have occupied this post so far. He has assisted the press both financially and morally. He is easily accessible at home or office. Since he became minister, the Saudi press has improved considerably, thanks to his efforts.

But Saudi journalists are still treated unfairly on account of the terms of employment that now apply to hiring of the time pressmen. The system that applies to them is still that of the daily wage earners which does not go far to entice Saudi youths to join the ranks of the profession.

An "Al-Medina" writer commented on the award of top motor cars to the top ten students of Saudi secondary schools by saying that this was not exactly the right prize. Instead of giving them cars — offered by a dealer in Jeddah — which might lead them to death or injury, they should have been given books or air tickets and expenses to visit some of the advanced countries to learn more about them.

The ten most distinguished secondary school graduates were awarded their prizes at a special ceremony held in Jeddah recently.

On the other hand, another "Al-Medina" writer extolled the action of the car dealer and said that it was a great precedent for encouraging distinguished students in this country. The writer called upon other businessmen and companies to follow suit. He said this is quite common elsewhere in the world, since many institutions of learning are dependent not so much on government aid but on private subsidies.

Pilgrimage to Mecca

By Jim Landers

JEDDAH — On Wednesday, two million Muslims from around the world will set out from Mecca destined to retrace the footsteps of Prophet Muhammad for the 1,388th time.

Rich or poor, their garments will make them indistinguishable in the eyes of their fellow pilgrims and people watching on television in more than 40 countries.

As the sun rises over the Hejaz Mountains Thursday, the entire group will begin the trek to Mount Arafat. Two million voices will raise the cry: "Labbayka! Labbayka! Allah Akbar!"

Labbayka. Here I come, O Lord. God is most great.

Haji, the pilgrimage, the congress of Islam has begun. From Indonesia, Malaysia, Bangladesh, China; from Nigeria, Niger, Senegal, Sudan and Somalia; from Iran, Pakistan, Iraq, Turkey, Syria, Jordan and Palestine; from the whole of North Africa and the Arabian peninsula; from the continents of the world, the pilgrims have come.

They come to a city that is synonymous with salvation throughout the world and in virtually all languages. They come to relive the story of Abraham, the prophet who revealed the foundations of the world's great monotheistic faiths.

They come with the exhortations of Prophet Muhammad and the command of God ringing from the Holy Koran:

"Exhort all men to make the pilgrimage," God instructed the Prophet. "They will come to you on foot and on the backs of swift camels from every distant quarter; they will come to avail themselves of many a benefit and to pronounce on the appointed days the name of God...."

"Such is God's commandment. He that reveres the sacred rites of God shall fare better in the sight of his Lord."

Climax of life

For many, the Hajj is the climax of life. It is one of the five pillars of Islam, a mandate for all Muslims who have the physical and material means to make the trip to Mecca.

The pilgrimage to Mina, to Mount Arafat and to Muzdalifa takes place in an atmosphere of deep sanctity and prayer. Each pilgrim is in a state of Ihram, a consecration of body and soul reached through the denial of practices attendant on man's physical being.

In addition to the fulfillment of the individual's duties before God, Hajj is also a time of unity for the 700 million Muslims spread across the globe.

The duties of sacrifice undertaken by the pilgrims on Friday in Mina are carried out at home as well by Muslims who stayed behind. Friday marks one of the most important days in the Islamic year — the Eid Al Adha, literally, the Festival distance to the station of Abraham for more prayer, includ-

obeying his will and shunting the devil by sparing his son's performed every year at Mina, and by Muslims elsewhere, as the sacrifice to begin the Eid Al-Adha.

On the day of sacrifice, the pilgrims have their heads shaved, or their hair cut, according to the instructions of Prophet Muhammad. They return to Mecca to perform the Tawaf al-Ifada (circling again of the Holy Kaaba). Once this is done, the state of Ihram then comes to an end.

According to Aisha, the Prophet's favorite wife, Prophet Muhammad returned to Mina after the Tawaf al-Ifada and remained there for another three days. The pilgrims today follow suit, casting more pebbles at the upright stones during the final three days at Mina.

Haji comes to an end when the pilgrims return for the last time to Mecca and perform a farewell Tawaf at the Holy Kaaba.

Prophet Muhammad, his pilgrimage complete, returned 1,346 years ago to Medina, his instructions to the people of Islam complete. He died in Aisha's arms three months later.

Pilgrim tents assembled at Muzdalifa on the Plain of Arafat of Sacrifice.

"Brothers!" said King Khaled, addressing the pilgrims last year. "A great Islamic conference, the pilgrimage, is being held in Mecca these days. It is an occasion for men to witness the many benefits of the Hajj, such as getting to know one another, to work together more closely and to meet in this holy place which witnessed the daybreak of Islam and the emergence of the call for the worship of God."

The Holy Kaaba

The pilgrims are drawn from around the world to a small, ancient stone house in Mecca. In a corner of the house, a black stone rests in a casing of silver. The house is the Holy Kaaba, built by Abraham thousands of years ago on the instructions of God.

Just to one side of the Kaaba is the well of Zamzam, God's gift to Abraham and his wife Hagar. Hagar had pleaded with God to provide water for her infant son Ismail. She ran between the hillocks of Safa and Marwa making her prayer.

Today the Kaaba, the well of Zamzam and the path from Safa to Marwa are all within the Holy Mosque of Mecca. The structure is one of the greatest buildings in all Islam, and can hold 300,000 worshippers at one time. The seven minarets at the corners of the mosque are more than 90 meters high.

Before setting out for Mina on Wednesday, the pilgrims will have entered the mosque — starting on their right foot — and advanced in prayer to the black stone set in the Kaaba. After kissing the stone (or, if prevented by the crowds, raising the hand and kissing it as symbolic fulfillment), the pilgrims make seven circuits around the Kaaba (a practice called Tawaf).

The pilgrims retire a short ing the Exordium of the Holy Koran:

In the name of God

The Compassionate

The Merciful

Praise be to God, Lord of the Creation,

The Compassionate, the Merciful,

King of Judgement! Day!

You alone we worship, and to You alone

We pray for help.

Guide us to the straight path

The path of those whom

You have favored,

Not of those who have incurred

Your wrath,

Nor of those who have gone astray.

The pilgrims next retrace the steps of Hagar between Safa and Marwa. The path between the two spots is followed seven times.

All of these sacred rites are performed by the pilgrims in a state of Ihram. Men are required to wear but two white, unsewn garments, their heads bare as well as their ankles. Women are clad in a long garment reaching from the head to the feet and revealing only the face and hands. Gloves and scents are prohibited.

These practices are followed as Prophet Muhammad performed them in instructing Muslims about the pilgrimage. In 630 A.D. (8 A.H.), the Prophet himself cleared the Holy Kaaba of the idols worshipped there by the people of Mecca. It remains empty to this day.

Final journey

Two years later, Prophet Muhammad made his last journey to Mecca. It was on this pilgrimage that his instructions for the performance of Hajj were made. He told the 140,000 Muslims who were with him that the story of Abraham, Hagar and Ismail was fundamental to the Islamic faith. Abraham had followed the word of God, and built the Kaaba. Hagar had prayed to God for water to save the life of Ismail, and her prayers were answered. It was Abraham, the Prophet reminded his fellow pilgrims, who instructed his people that there is no god but God.

The Prophet then moved at the head of the pilgrimage to Mina, a distance of six kilometers from the Holy Mosque, and there spent the night in prayer.

At sunrise, Prophet Muhammad walked to the Plain of Arafat. It was here that he delivered his farewell sermon, instructing Muslims once more in the five pillars of faith. Today, the pilgrims spend all afternoon standing in prayer on the Plain.

The pilgrims then move on to Muzdalifa to spend the night.

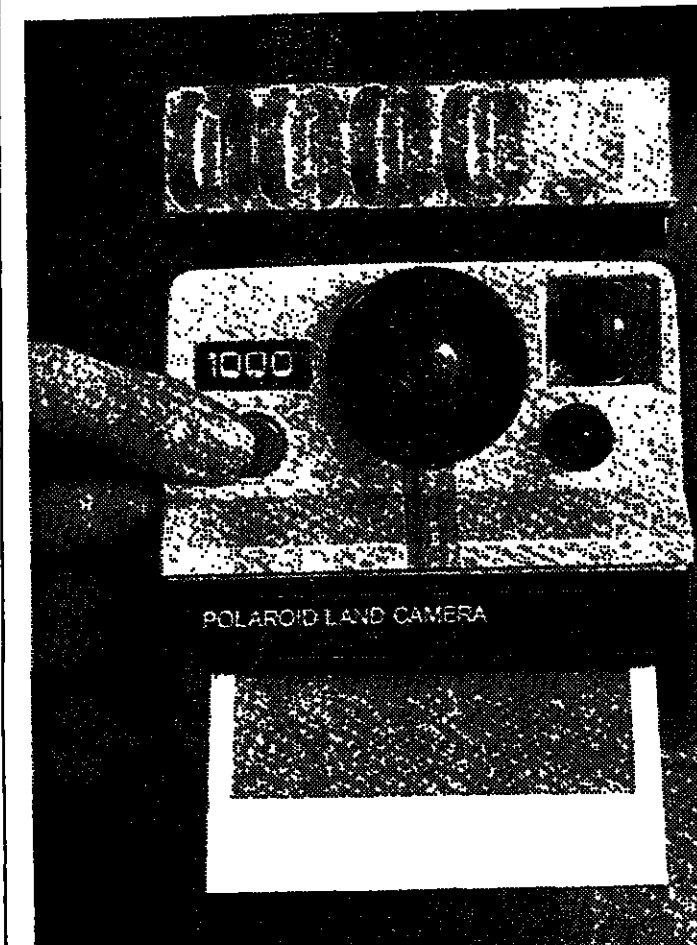

The story of Abraham continues through these stages of the pilgrimage. At Mina are the three upright stones known as Jamarat Al-Aqaba. The Prophet instructed the pilgrims to throw seven pebbles at these stones, a symbol for spurning the temptations of the devil, who had tried to lure Abraham away from the performance of the sacrifice of his son as God had instructed.

Sacrifice

God rewarded Abraham for life. He provided a sacrificial beast instead, which He instructed Abraham to offer.

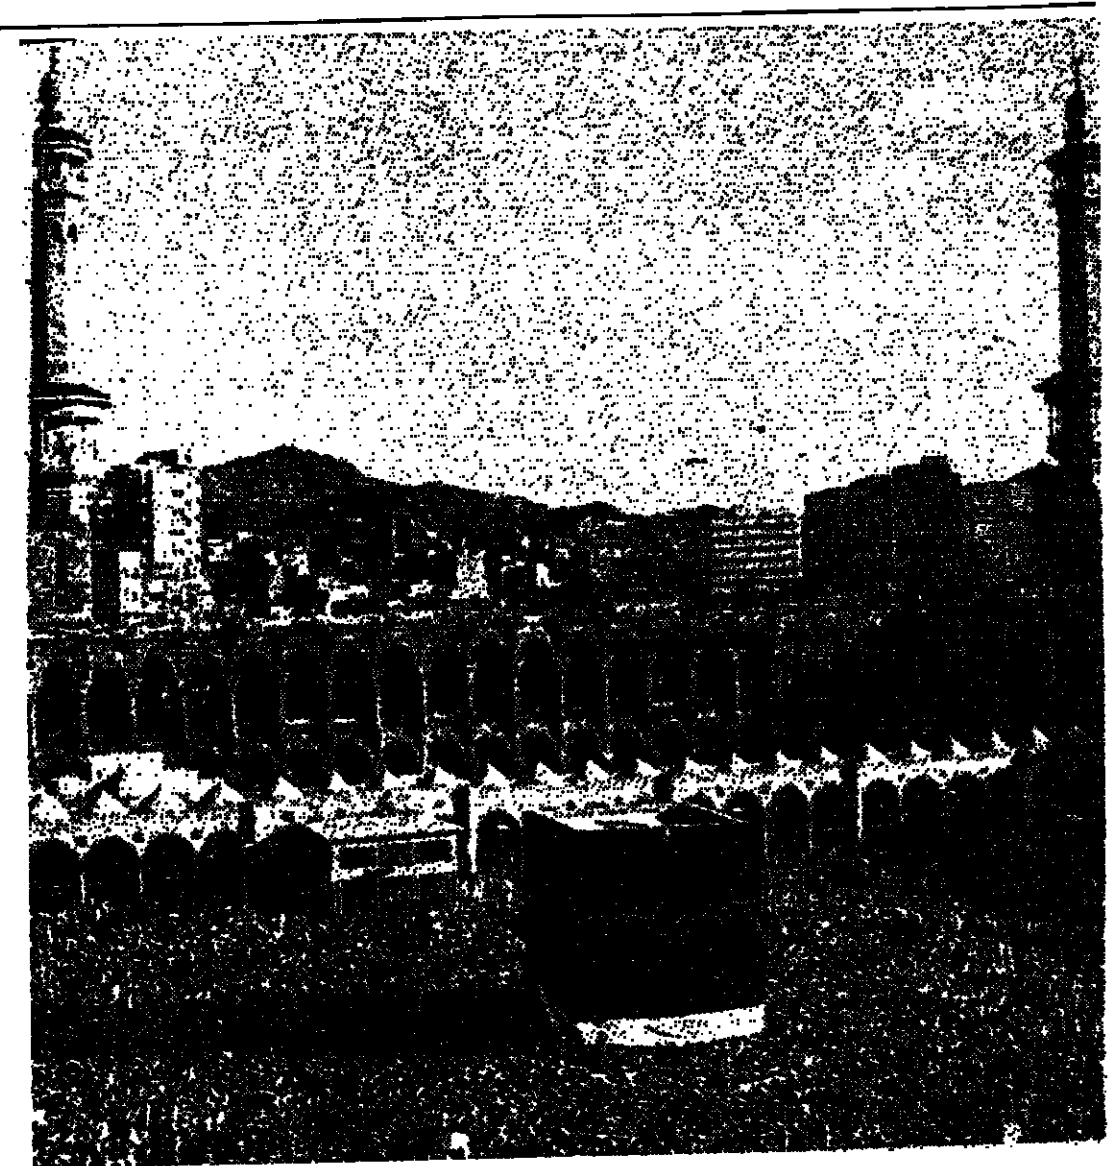

At Mina, Prophet Muhammad showed the pilgrims how to re-enact this sacrifice. It is

Middle-of-the-road football

Super Bowl champs plummet

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—What's wrong with the Dallas Cowboys?

The defending Super Bowl champions looked anything but super Sunday as they bowed to the Miami Dolphins, 23-16.

"I'm perplexed," said Cowboys quarterback Roger Staubach. "We've maintained a pretty consistent pattern of middle-of-the-road football, a level of mediocrity."

The Cowboys' record after 10 weeks of the National Football League season is a decidedly unspectacular 6-4. They trail Washington by 14 games in the National Conference's East Division, and the Redskins can stretch that to two full games with a victory over Baltimore on Monday night's game.

STAUBACH: Perplexed

Picked
Miami's Bob Griese picked apart Dallas' flex defense, completing 12 of 18 passes for 185 yards and setting up one-yard scoring runs by Norm Bulaich and Delvin Williams. The Cowboys contributed to their own downfall by committing five turnovers, two of which led to first-period touchdowns by Miami.

Meanwhile, Denver, the team Dallas beat in Super Bowl XII, didn't look very super, either. The New York Jets reeled off 24 straight points to upset the Broncos, 31-28, dropping Denver's record to 6-4.

Elsewhere, the Oakland Raiders beat the Kansas City Chiefs, 20-10, the Minnesota Vikings defeated the Detroit Lions, 17-7, the Los Angeles Rams edged the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, 26-23, the Philadelphia Eagles surprised the Green Bay Packers, 10-3, the Atlanta Falcons topped the San Francisco 49ers, 21-10, the Pittsburgh Steelers beat the New Orleans Saints, 20-14, the Houston Oilers trimmed the Cleveland Browns, 14-10, the New England Patriots got by the Buffalo Bills, 14-10, the San Diego Chargers downed the Cincinnati Bengals, 22-13, the Seattle Seahawks edged the Chicago Bears, 31-29 and the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the New York Giants, 30-10.

Convalescent Lucas leads Blazers to 4th NBA win

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—Some people tip-toe into the water. Maurice Lucas dives right in.

Lucas, sidelined since September with a broken bone in his right hand, played his first game of the National Basketball Association season Sunday night. Instead of breaking in slowly, Lucas played 37 minutes and scored 30 points to lead the Portland Trail Blazers to a 111-96 victory over the New York Knicks.

"That's more than I expected to play and my body's telling me," said Lucas, who played with the second and third fingers of his right hand taped together.

In the only other NBA game Sunday, the Los Angeles Lakers beat the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Lionel Hollins added 16 points for the Blazers, 12 of them in the third period when the Blazers took the lead to stay. It was Portland's fourth victory in a row.

Los Angeles hit 57.1 percent of its shots to beat Cleveland as Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Adrian Dantley scored 26 points apiece and Norm Nixon added 25 points, seven assists and three steals.

"I'm pleased with the way we're playing but I'll be more pleased if we play like this out on the road," said Lakers coach Jerry West, whose team is now 6-0 at home but 0-4 on the road.

GRIESE: Unpicked Dallas defense

Minnesota quarterback Frank Tarkenton, came back from broken teeth and a split lip in the first half, finishing with 18 completions in 27 attempts for 211 yards and one touchdown. The victory put Minnesota, 6-4, within one game of first-place Green Bay, 7-3, in the NFC Central.

Rookie Frank Corral's fourth field goal of the game, a 27-yarder with three seconds remaining, gave Los Angeles its victory. The Bucs had tied the score with just 47 seconds left. Johnny McKay catching a 23-yard pass from Mike Rae.

There had to be some luck involved today," conceded Philadelphia coach Dick Vermeil, whose club capitalized on a fumbled snap by punter David Beverly on a second-quarter punt play for the only touchdown of its victory over Green Bay.

Siege Bartkowski, who suffered a separated shoulder last Monday, ran for one touchdown and threw a 37-yard scoring pass to Wallace Francis as Atlanta spoiled the head coaching debut of the 49ers, Fred O'Connor, who replaced the fired Pete McCulley on Tuesday.

San Francisco's O.J. Simpson suffered a shoulder separation early in the second period. X-rays were to be taken to determine the extent of the injury.

Clip North Stars, 2-1

Sabres climb out of NHL cellar

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—The Buffalo Sabres had a one-day taste of last place in the National Hockey League's Adams Division, and they didn't like it one bit — nor did the Buffalo fans, who let the Sabres know it before their game against the Minnesota North Stars Sunday night.

"I don't think the fans were exactly on our side when we came on the ice," said Buffalo goalie Don Edwards, well aware of the Sabres' five-game winless streak.

That streak included a 2-1 loss to the Minnesota North Stars Saturday night, a defeat which dropped the Sabres into the cellar behind the North Stars.

"When we came out on the ice, we were nervous," admitted Buffalo left wing Craig Ramsay. "Everybody knew we had a job to do," added Edwards.

The job was to beat the North Stars and leave the cellar, which is exactly what the Sabres did. They trimmed Minnesota 2-1 on goals by Ramsay and defenseman Bill Hart.

In the other NHL games, the New York Rangers won their seventh in a row with a 5-2 triumph over the Vancouver Canucks, the Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens tied, 1-1.

The Philadelphia Flyers topped the Colorado Rockies, 6-4, the Washington Capitals and Detroit Red Wings tied, 3-3, and the Chicago Black Hawks bested the St. Louis Blues, 3-1.

New York, off to its best start since the 1971-72 season, during which it lost just one of their first 17, got second-period goals from defenseman Ron Genschner and Dave Farrish and has now lost just one of its first 12 games.

33 lone sailors set out in French Atlantic race

ST. MALO, France, Nov. 6 (AP)—Thirty-three skippers left Sunday in a stiff wind on the Route du Rhum, a 6,400-kilometer race to Pointe-a-Pitre, Guadeloupe and France's first singlehanded transatlantic yacht race.

Among the starters were American Philip Weld in his trimaran, Rogue Wave, and Frenchman Alain Colas in Manureva, the renamed trimaran in which compatriot Eric Tabarly won the last transatlantic race in 1976.

The boats, ranging from nine to 39 meters, are expected to spend more than 20 days at sea.

The Route du Rhum is to be raced every four years, running at two-year intervals with the British transatlantic race.

Ch. Blyth, a 37-year-old Scot, had a favorite, dropped out early when the rudder broke in his Great Britain IV. He was disqualified because he had to call for help outside the specified limit.

Pierre Fehlmann of Switzerland led the pack at the start but had to return to port with a steering problem.

Peking may host badminton meet

BANGKOK, Nov. 6 (R)—The new World Badminton Federation (WBF) championship is expected to be held in Peking around the middle of next year, WBF secretary Teh Gin-soo said Monday.

Teh told reporters after a WBF meeting here that the Chinese delegation had accepted a proposal for the tournament for men and women team events, but confirmation from Peking is still needed.

Dollar holds steady on European markets

LONDON, Nov. 6 (Agencies) — The dollar was steady Monday in a quieter-than-usual atmosphere on the European foreign exchange markets.

The turbulence of recent months, which saw the dollar crashing to lower and lower levels, seemed to have been eased, at least for the time being, by last week's measures announced by President Carter.

On Tokyo Foreign Exchange, the dollar has gained about 14 yen since the U.S. measures which included an arrangement between the U.S. Japan and West Germany to allow big central bank intervention to stop disorderly conditions on the markets and support the U.S. currency.

The dollar closed in Tokyo at 189.375 yen, up from last Thursday's 186.025 and well above its postwar record low of 176.075 yen last Tuesday.

The dollar had closed at 189.45 in New York last Friday, and it opened in Tokyo at 188.508 Monday as traders adjusted their positions accordingly.

Dealers said dollar selling by exporters in the morning pushed the dollar down to a low of 188.40, but buying by importers later pushed it to a high of 189.60.

Gold bullion prices dropped radically to $208.25 a troy ounce in London and $207.75 in Zurich, Europe's two major markets. It had ended last week at $215.25 in London and $215.50 in Zurich.

Gold reached an all-time peak of more than $245 a week before in panicky trading when investors found Carter's phase 2 anti-inflation program inadequate.

On Zurich's currency market, the dollar rose sharply early Monday but slacked off to a mid-morning rate of 1.6490 Swiss francs. That was still well up on Friday's closing 1.6215 francs. And 11 per cent up on last week's low point of 1.4825 francs.

One Zurich dealer said European central banks had proved firm in their resolve to help prop up the dollar, helping build up the shattered market confidence in the currency.

In London, the pound was quoted at $1.9705 at mid-morning, down from $1.9910 Friday.

Dollar rates in other European centers, compared with Friday's closing rates:

Frankfurt — 1.9120 marks, up from 1.8955 and nearly 11 per cent up from last Monday's nadir.

Paris — 4.3400 French francs, up from 4.29.

Amsterdam — 2.0620 guilders, up from 2.0415.

Milan — 845.30 lire, up from 835.80.

Market Comment

Special to "Arab News"

LONDON, Nov. 6 — The dollar continued Friday's gradual recovery after the weekend break, though the level of activity was noticeably lower. Although last week's comprehensive support package has improved sentiment a great deal, the tone of the market remained nervous and tentative. Toward mid-morning, the dollar eased back against continental currencies in the face of some light profit-taking.

The pound ran into adverse pressure at the outset, with its effective rate opening 0.4 lower at 62.5, though it rallied toward lunch-time. The equity market shook off worrying press reports about further conflict on the wages front and staged a technical rally. The FT Index edged forward to 475.5 at noon, compared with the closing level of 472.4 ahead of the weekend.

Wall Street had turned better on Friday and this undoubtedly provided support for London. Although New York was adversely affected at first by the surprisingly swift move of prime rates to 10 3/4 per cent, it rapidly recovered its poise and the market rallied more than 6 points on the day, to register a net gain of 17.06 for the week as a whole. The lift in prime rates was so swift that Citibank, which sets its prime weekly, according to a market-related formula, leaptfrogged right over the intervening 10 1/2 per cent rate to post the new 10 3/4 per cent rate after a half-point jump from the previous week's level.

Petroleum shares were particularly strong after Mobil announced that U.S. gasoline prices should rise by two cents a gallon in December, which would improve fourth quarter profits. The company's shares rose $2 to $68 3/4 and Exxon, the most actively traded issue of the day, was lifted from $50 to $52 1/2.

The London market did well ahead of the weekend in the face of a string of results from votes held at each of Ford's U.K. plants in response to the company's "final" 16 per cent pay offer. The overwhelming rejection of that offer, already more than three times higher than the government's guideline for the current wage round, underlined the difficulties that Prime Minister Callaghan and his colleagues face in controlling inflation in the coming year. The FT30 Index finished unchanged on the day at 472.40.

Abu Dhabi to increase oil exports to India

ABU DHABI, Nov. 6 (R) — The United Arab Emirates (UAE) has agreed to increase oil exports to India, the official Emirates News Agency (WAM) reported Monday.

The agency quoted from a joint statement issued following talks between UAE Minister of Petroleum and Mineral Resources Mana Said Al-Otaiba and Indian Minister of Chemicals, Fertilizers and Petroleum Hemvati Nandan Bahuguna, who left for home Monday at the end of a two-day visit.

India imports about one million tons of crude oil a year from the UAE, but no figure was given for the agreed increase.

The statement said the two sides had agreed to study an Indian proposal regarding a long-term agreement with the Abu Dhabi National Oil Company to market fertilizers in India produced by a factory to be constructed here.

They also decided to form a joint committee to conduct an economic feasibility study of India's offer to help construct an iron and steel complex in Abu Dhabi, the agency reported.

Economic Briefs

●ROME — The governing body of the U.N. World Food Program has allocated an additional $10 million in food and cash to meet emergency needs for the rest of the year. The decision, announced Monday by the Committee on Food Aid Policies and Programs, is due to concern over the "precarious food situation prevailing in a number of countries recently stricken by natural disasters such as Vietnam, Laos and Ethiopia."

●SINGAPORE — Hong Kong businessmen plan to set up textile manufacturing facilities in Canton and send the goods to Hong Kong for final shipment to the U.S. with

Hong Kong certificates of origin, the Vice President of Airborne Freight Corporation Graham Dorland said Monday. He said 65 per cent of the products would be made in China while the rest would be finished in Hong Kong for outward shipment purposes. Dorland said his company was preparing to ship additional textile products from Hong Kong, but did not give further details.

●OSLO — The Statoil-Mobil group announced Monday that it will be technically possible to lay a 200 kilometers long pipeline from the giant Statfjord oil and gas field to the coast of Norway.

Air France views safety of flights to Tehran

PARIS, Nov. 6 (AP) — Senior Air France officials met Monday to discuss the development of the situation in Iran, the airline announced.

For the moment, it said, all flights to Tehran were being maintained.

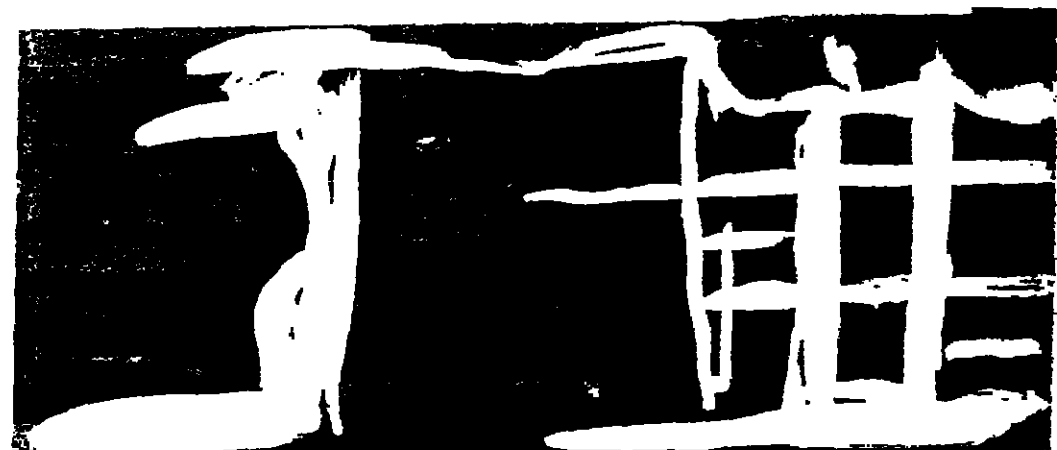

Japan Airlines has announced cancellation of the Tehran stop on all its flights.

THE TAME MUSTANG: The Mustang 108S, a new 11 ton hydraulic excavator from Britain's Pricewaterhouse, climbs a 1 in 1.25 incline with ease during a recent demonstration in southern England. Fitted with an immensely powerful crawler drive that produces enormous tractive effort and carefully balanced against machine weight, it offers a host of advantages over almost all similar machines. Two levers handle the whole digging cycle, with a third lever controlling all travel functions and, when fitted with a 3.5m arm, it can reach down to 6.45m — its maximum operating depth.

At leader's funeral

Police fire on Sikh rioters

NEW DELHI Nov. 6 (R) — Police opened fire twice Monday to break up a crowd of rioting Sikhs who turned out for the funeral of one of their leaders killed in sectarian clashes Sunday in central New Delhi, (earlier story page 5).

Brandishing traditional swords, thousands of Sikh demonstrators burst three buses and damaged 17 others during a six-kilometer funeral procession across west Delhi.

A girl was hit in the knee by a ricocheting bullet when police fired to stop the mob from setting fire to a bus near the city bus station.

The death toll from Sunday's street fight rose to four when a Sikh in hospital with a bullet wound died Monday.

Trouble spread Sunday to the western and southern suburbs of Delhi where police fired about 20 rounds of tear gas shells at angry demonstrators protesting against a three-day convention here of Nirankari Sikhs, whom orthodox Akali Sikhs regard as outcasts.

One policeman was injured in the stoning by the demonstrators.

More than 400 Akali Sikhs have been arrested during the two days of agitation.

Egypt to bar students from headline states

CAIRO, Nov. 6 (R) — Egypt has decided that Arab students from countries opposing its peace talks with Israel will be barred from enrolling in Egyptian universities, the semi-official newspaper "Al-Ahram" said Monday.

It said the bar would affect students from Syria, Iraq, Algeria, South Yemen and Libya. The newspaper added that sons of diplomats from those countries in Egypt and those with Egyptian mothers and dead fathers will not be affected.

Monday's crowd was much bigger than Sunday's but police, backed by para-military units, were better equipped to handle the situation.

Delhi University and schools in parts of the city were closed. Several shops in the old city were shut in response to a strike call by Sikh leaders.

The Nirankari convention, which ended Monday, condemned the six-month ban on the entry into Punjab of the Nirankari chief Baba Gurbachan Singh whom orthodox Sikhs accuse of having proclaimed himself prophet.

Akali Sikhs regard the Sikh holy book, the Guru Granth Sahib, as the final word on their religion and are commanded not to recognize any more prophets.

Indira said confident of local vote results

NEW DELHI, Nov. 6 (R) — Former Indian Premier Indira Gandhi was reported confident of the voters' verdict as poll officials reported a record turnout in her by-election battle.

The officials said 453,000 people or 76.09 per cent of the electorate in the sleepy coffee-growing district of Chikmagalur voted in Sunday's poll.

Carter describes himself as timid during first year

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (R) — President Carter said in an interview published here Monday that he may have been too cautious and timid during the first year and a half of his presidency.

Carter told James Reston of the "New York Times" in what was called a midterm interview that he was now more at ease about exerting the authority and influence of the presidency.

He said he doubted that he would have had the temerity a year ago to call the Camp David summit with Sadat and Begin.

The president listed his priorities for the next two years as the implementation of his new energy plan, controlling inflation and the conclusion and ratification of a new strategic arms limitations treaty with the Soviet Union.

The president said he had neither the authority nor the desire to impose mandatory wage and price controls.

Unknown killers massacre 25 in Rhodesian bush

SALISBURY, Nov. 6 (AP) — Unknown assailants murdered 25 black civilians in northern Rhodesia over the weekend in one of the worst massacres since guerrilla warfare broke out six years ago, the Rhodesian military said Monday.

It said a patrol heard gunfire in an area of northern Rhodesia. "The whole area had been cleared of empty cartridge cases, but investigations indicate that communist weapons were used by the killers."

Palestine dance troupe draws rival protests in New Jersey

NORTH BERGEN, New Jersey Nov. 6 (AP) — Members of the Jewish Defense League and a group of Arab-Americans held rival demonstrations in front of Embassy Hall here as a Palestinian Dance Group from Beirut began its performance.

About 30 young JDL members wearing yarmulkes screamed across Bergenline Avenue at a crowd of 100 pro-Palestinian Arab-Americans, police said.

Members of the JDL said that the performance was a thinly-veiled fundraising attempt by the Palestine Liberation Organization.

"This performance has been organized by an organization which is headed by the brother of Yasser Arafat," said Moshe Ben-Meir, the JDL's New Jersey director. "The Red Crescent is like a Red Cross, and it is a very big supporter of the PLO."

Mahmoud Naji of Chicago, who heads the fund, denied the charge.

The performance by the Palestinian Folklore Troupe was sponsored by the United Holy Land Fund, a non-profit, charitable organization, according to Naji. The troupe of 24 orphans from the Beirut Center for Child Welfare has raised about $500,000 on a 20-city, 40-day tour of the United States, Naji said.

"The money from this will go back to the school," Naji countered.

Police in light-blue riot helmets and leather jackets directed traffic around the demonstration, while the Hudson County Prosecutor's Office filmed the protesters. No arrests were made.

About 1,000 persons, some from as far away as California, attended the concert.

Kreisky still silent on resignation hint

VIENNA, Nov. 6 (R) — Chancellor Bruno Kreisky kept Austria guessing Monday after a threat to resign over a government defeat in a national referendum on nuclear energy.

The chancellor was believed ready to offer his resignation to the ruling Socialist Party after what he called a "personal setback" and a vote of no-confidence in the government.

But political observers said it was virtually certain party leaders would refuse to let the 67-year-old government chief step down one year before general elections are due.

Dr. Kreisky summoned the Socialist Presidium and Executive to a special session Monday night, but said only: "I am going to make my position clear, but I am not saying what it will be."

The chancellor accepted personal responsibility for the government's defeat by a one per cent margin Sunday. The result, he said, "can be held exclusively to my account as I was the originator of the referendum."

The effect of the referendum vote — first such political sampling in Austria's history — was to block plans to put the seven billion schilling ($500 million) Zwentendorf nuclear power station into operation next year.

Dr. Kreisky said he accepted the voters' verdict although it was only by a 50.47 to 49.53 per cent margin, and the plan near Vienna, would not be activated. Its future use now must be decided.

Party leaders, alarmed when Dr. Kreisky first hinted weeks ago that he might resign if his policy was rejected, immediately began persuading him to stay in office, informal sources said.

The chancellor, in power for 81 years, conferred with senior party officials until late Sunday night.

U.K. soccer garners star from Poland

LONDON, Nov. 6 (AP) — British soccer's growing list of overseas stars is set to gain a new name Tuesday, when Polish World Cup midfielder Kazimierz Deyna is scheduled to sign for Manchester City.

Deyna flew into England Monday accompanied by Tadeusz Nowak, a team mate with the Legia Warsaw Club.

Nowak is to spend two weeks with another First Division club, Bolton Wanderers, before deciding whether he stays permanently.

Nowak and Deyna are both 30 and are expected to cost $200,000 each.

salem." This is now the wish of King Khaled and every other Saudi citizen, he said.

Prince Fahd said that Saudi Arabia advocates and strives for Islamic solidarity, and the Organization of the Islamic Conference has made its headquarters in Jerusalem which is temporarily in Saudi Arabia. Its charter makes the liberation of Jerusalem one of the aims of the Arab states and one of the aims of every Muslim.

"It is clear then that the basic issues placed before the Baghdad summit were those of Jerusalem and the Palestinian Muslim people. These are two Islamic issues which concern every Muslim and not only the Arabs. We hence see the Baghdad summit as an Islamic conference from the viewpoint of its raison d'être and objectives."

Asked about the summit's position regarding Egypt, Prince Fahd said that the conference had decided not to take any actions that might harm the Egyptian people who had done so much for the Arabs. "The Egyptian people are Arabs and Muslims and derive from the Arab and Muslim people a motivating force for the benefit of Egypt, the Arabs and the Muslims."

In answer to another question, he said that rejecting the Camp David accords did not imply a rejection of a peaceful settlement. "We should not confuse matters," he said. "The summit rejected the accords for well known reasons."

"We seek peace," he said. "We shall always seek peace through a just and comprehensive solution which satisfies our legitimate demands. These were approved by the United Nations and international organizations. But Israel is arrogantly flouting international legitimacy and world public opinion. It is taking a line that is not conducive to a just peace sought by the Arabs, the Muslims and the world at large."

Message to Pilgrims
Meanwhile in a message to pilgrims who have converged on Saudi Arabia, Prince Fahd said that the Arabs must recognize the dangers facing them and adopt a scientific and rational policy to serve their larger interests.

Prince Fahd said "unless the Arabs clearly set their objectives they will lose not only their historic role but their distinct Islamic identity. Continued divisions and polarizations may lead to a complete change in the regional map and we shall find ourselves in circumstances that will be fraught with danger and violence, to say the least."

He said "the present juncture is one of the most serious for the Arabs and Muslims." And added that Saudi Arabia was capable of shouldering its responsibility towards the Arabs and Muslims and towards humanity.

"We proceed in this direction from two points. To spread the word of God, unite the Muslims and consolidate their capabilities until we regain our historic right and once again become a capable and strong nation contributing to human prosperity, and to establish peace and stability internally to be able to deal with and participate with other nations at the highest possible levels.

Advocating greater Islamic solidarity, Prince Fahd said it was necessary "to provide the foundations for getting together and uniting efforts of the political, economic and military leadership, so that the Islamic people may once again become the true radiating center of civilization."

"What the late King Abdul Aziz did by unifying this peninsula was the first step toward a united Islamic nation," Prince Fahd said. "It was he who helped boost Islamic solidarity which is the foundation of the present policy of Saudi Arabia."

Prince Fahd said that the government of Saudi Arabia was keen to help others, fulfill its obligations and strike a balance between its national interests and those of others. He said that the Kingdom has always been prudent and maintained reasonable oil prices to help other countries avoid serious crises. He said that the Saudi stand was taken in the hope that the leading industrialized states would improve their dealings with developing states and take the necessary steps to reduce the prices of manufactured goods. Moreover, he said, the Saudi government wanted to see a rational use of energy through-out the world and the provision for greater chances for stability and prosperity for the people of the world over.

"The Kingdom has made sacrifices and showed flexibility because its aim was to contribute to the solution of critical problems in the world," he added.

Later Monday Prince Fahd held the annual banquet for prominent pilgrims and pilgrim leaders in Mecca. The dinner was attended by President Zia Ul-Haq of Pakistan, Sheikh Muhammad Al-Shargi, Ruler of Fujaira—a member state of the UAE—Rashid Al-Tajer, Sudanese vice-president and other leading pilgrims.

In another development, it was announced Monday that Prince Fahd will lead the washing of the Holy Kaaba ceremony Tuesday.

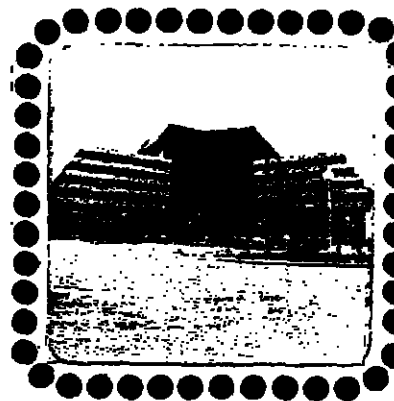

No Cairo

The headquarters of the Arab League from Cairo to another Arab capital, probably Tunis and to establish a joint $4 billion fund to strengthen the front with Israel.

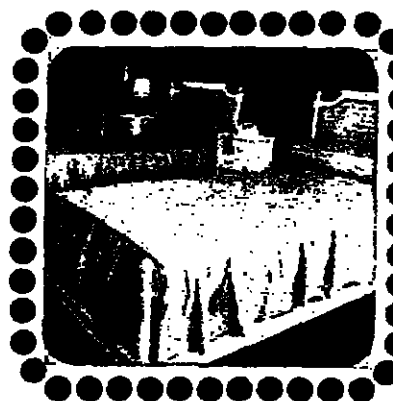

Summit sources told "Arab News" that Syria and Jordan would receive $1.75 billion and $1.25 billion respectively, while the PLO will get $400 million. The sources added that the PLO allocation would be jointly supervised by the PLO and Jordan.

Lebanon's share would be from the remaining $600 million.
